SWE RECAP

ST. PATRICK'S DAY ENGINEERING EXTRAVAGANZA

SWE recently hosted a St. Patrick's Day themed Engineering Extravaganza with the help of ASME and SAC. The CC ballroom was thoroughly decorated with gold coins, four leaf clovers, and seas of green, displaying a welcoming and fun environment. It was a thrilling fusion of creativity and competition where students indulged in free boba, pizza, and an array of artistic endeavors, all while gearing up for the highlight of the day - the catapult building competition.

To start, students were greeted with a Yaya provided display of milk tea and juices for them to sip and enjoy. Pizza, chips, and more fueled students up to socialize and paint while they awaited the instructions for the engineering competition. Everyone enjoyed themselves in the comfortable setting, gathering around tables and even getting a chance to meet NJIT's president, Teik Lim!

During the competition, teams brainstormed, tinkered, and constructed their catapults, each aiming for the prizes that awaited the winner. They were able to show off their amazing engineering skills with a limited choice of materials, as the timer ticked away, building adrenaline. Finally, a panel of ASME volunteers observed the efficiency of each catapult by propelling "lucky coins" across the room.

Overall, even though St. Patrick's Day was a few weeks ago, this did not dampen the festive energy at all. It was a fun, engaging event for all members that attended. There truly was something for everyone, allowing all students to have a well deserved break during the day.
